To "My dearest Friend" (Mrs. Maria W. Chapman)

1859? The writer is going to Dr. (George Barrell) Cheever's prayer meeting because she wishes to get away from "gay and cheerful sounds" on this solemn day. "God have mercy on this wretched country!" Encloses a letter received from a friend whom the writer is trying to "make a Garrisonian abolitionist." He has given liberally to the "Brown fund" that is being raised in the city, and the writer is handing $100 over to the addressee to be appropriated as she deems best. A.L. 3 p. 7 x 4 3/8 in.

«New York» Describes a train journey with the temperature up to 90° in the shade. On arrival, W.L.G. went to see G. W. Benson, who has been suffering from neuralgia. Gives an account of the Benson family and their financial problems. The weather changed from heat to a cold and dismal rain-storm. The anniversary meeting was respectably attended, "interesting and high-toned." Among the speakers were S. Longfellow and G. R. Noyes. Last night's meeting was very large. Dr. G. B. Cheever was in the audience. W. Phillips made a great effort. The women are to have a convention today. W.L.G.'s health is better than expected.

New York: The writer sends a copy of his sketch of Garrison, "as stereotyped for the New Cyclopaedia." Since neither of the editors appreciated Garrison and one affected to despise him, the writer was careful to observe the rules of the work, so as to prevent mutilation of the manuscript. Regrets that the sketches of Dr. and Mrs. Follen in the Cyclopaedia are "so meagre and unsatisfactory." Explains how this came about. "The Harper's Ferry affair ... absorbs the Standard as it absorbs the mind of the country ... The invasion was God's own earthquake, and Slavery trembles to its very foundations from the shock."

"New York. The writer encloses a condensed statement of the doctrines of the New Church. "... the most practical way to 'observe' the day on which the noble martyr John Brown is to be hanged would be to give the enclosed $100 to 'the furtherance of the Anti-Slavery cause' ..."

New York. The writer thanks the addressee for some advice. Says that, with the exception of S. H. Gay, there is no one in New York who can supply him with information about the Anti-Slavery cause. "In regard to Dr. Pomroy, I was balancing between entire silence and just such a mention of his fall as you suggest. ... We had a good meeting at Dr. Cheever's church last evening ... As for Emerson, I have always thought him vastly overrated ..."

.(New York?). The writer failed to receive a newspaper article and "the Abington proceedings" from the addressee. "Newspapers, not sent from the office of publication, are particularly liable to be lost" (in the mail). Was sorry to hear that the John Brown affair had not helped the collection of funds. Inferred from G. B. Cheever's remarks that he was very glad to have been on the same platform with W. Phillips, and that he will speak before the American Anti-Slavery Society in the Spring.

New York. The writer considers it proper to decline the "flattering invitation" to be present on the occasion of the 26th anniversary of the National A.S. Society, as, in respect to recent events in the slave states, he "would much rather think, than either talk or write." Foresees the possible necessity for the non-slave-holding Southern Whites to adopt "measures for the protection of life and liberty." The writer hopes, if the time for action should come, to take a "manly and patriotic" part in the contest.

260 Fourth Ave. (N. Y.). The writer reports on family business affairs. "I saw by the papers that the row was a very tame affair, looked to me like a wrestling match." Business is flourishing. "We shall lose about $16000, a flea compared to most people." An old Scotchman named George Smith, for whom the writer had invested nearly a million within the month, complimented her on her skillful purchasing; she now has the "whole control of the stock department." There is no chance of a dissolution of the Union? just yet. Stocks only rose ten per cent. Contrasts the former attitude of the South with the present; now they must sell at a loss, for they must have dollars to buy. "I look for an insurrection within a month." Describes the health and beauty of the little boy grandchild? with her. The writer is beginning to think she is very easy to live with.

«New York. Describes dismal train ride in rain and heat. Was warmly welcomed by Mr. & Mrs. O. Johnson. Went to Brooklyn with Johnson and W. L. Garrison to hear H. W. Beecher preach. His sermon was a racy discourse on conscience. J. M. Forbes of Milton and Mrs. F. G. Shaw of Staten Island were in the congregation. W. L. G. shook hands with old Dr. Lyman Beecher, now in "a state of second childhood"; spoke with H. W. Beecher and was warmly greeted by T. Tilton and wife. Had tea last evening with Alice and Phoebe Carey. Horace Greeley was present and the peace question was discussed. Attended G. B. Cheever's church. His discourse on the Constitution was "wonderfully absurd." Goodell "enjoyed it to the brim."

New York. The writer is at her son Henry's, after a week at Staten Island. Describes the life in the house. Mr. Jay, having been rejected from the delegateship of his Bedford church to the Episcopal convocation, has presented himself for the nomination of St. Phillips, the New York Black church. Discusses Lincoln's proclamation. "All but the worst of pro-slavery democrats are disappointed with it as not going fast enough or far enough... Henry is ready to slay old Abe." "Eman-cipation with compensation" "stinks in the nostrils of people." Refers to Daniel Webster as taking care of the interests of the cotton manufacturers. Tells of the Democrats taunting the Republicans and the plentiful use of such epithets as "seces-sionist." If the Democrats "dare" they threatened, i.e. call back their troops from the army because emancipation is revolution & so on, why the saddle will be on the other horse." The writer gives her idea of colonizing (the South). Fears that young Hovey has been wounded. The writer would be "terribly afflicted to see Europe, looking on, blind to the case," when we have to look to other lands for counsel "at a time when we really have for statesmanship a feeble dolt & a selfish knave, for political philosopher, not one." Criticizes McClellan. Praises Harriet Martineau. "For she knows as well as feels a-right; while in these last matters all our abolitionists but Garrison, have shown themselves utterly unequal to the occasions as they arose, & even G. was the first to suggest compensation to the president. Captain (Robert Gould) Shaw is fighting near Frederick in Maryland. "He writes that they were living on green apples & green corn. "

"New York: "I see nobody but the Foreigners who does not expect to crush the rebellion shortly, except Elliot Pierce." The writer was glad to hear the latter's opinion that the war will be long, "for if closed up now, it would be on the basis of the status quo." The Rebels are encouraged by the New York election, "which fills the next Congress with secession favourers." Mentions "a very pretty hymn" which appeared in the Republican papers; criticizes a poetic discrepancy in this hymn. Tells of the singing of the "John Brown chorus." Elliot Pierce showed the belt through which the bullet that wounded him passed. Little Henry (Chapman) sends his love to Léonce (Laugel).

«New York. Tells some gossip about an Englishwoman Mrs. Rebecca Lee. The writer describes her room, apparently in the house of her son Henry. The last elections in New York are not as bad as they look. "They have only 10,000 majority, & the Army opinion, shown by the easy relinquishment of McClellan to be Republican, more than overbalances that." The writer points out that "we, one half the North, are held back from victory by the mistaken political policy cherished by the other half." Reports certain predictions concerning the war. "I am one in heart with the blind masses of our people, who give themselves so devotedly for the unity of the country..." Believes that the majority of thinking people are doubtful about the final issue; "but they dare not say so, for it would be treason in a sort... But I have never heard one single person express

"Ultimately I am sure of Union by Freedom." Points out that "the Negroes are free:- virtually so, as I trust & we are more free than I ever remember." A great educational work remains to be done. "When the north permitted the south in 1837 to rifle her mail-bags, she ensured the reign of force for a season..." (23 Nov.) Describes tea guests at the Jays, including "old (George) Bancroft, noisy because he is deaf - the same affected sycophant he used to be, but now an Abolitionist & all his conversation of nothing but Freedom..."

The writer can meet most things, "but not an abolitionist beginning to feel his occupation gone, They rail at the gov't as if it was wicked; while no Saint, its incapacity is its strong point & that is not its own fault." It is "the new young generation that have actually got the matter in their hands." Mentions as examples the actions of the young sons of Garrison, Philbrick, and the Follens. No.55

New York. The writer tells about his children at school. Henry (Chapman) whom the writer met yesterday, did not know what would become of his mother (Mrs. Maria Weston Chapman) as they were going to Redfield in three weeks and it would not do for her to live alone in New York. The writer would be happy to receive her till July, "but after that we shut up." Describes a call on the Shaws at which "there was a something wanting."

c (New York). If nobody wants the writer's side-saddle, it should be sent to Mrs. Francois Cage, who needs one. "But as far as my experience goes, it is far less fatiguing to ride astride." The writer was at the Annual Meeting and saw all the usual friends except Pillsbury and Foster. "Mrs. Howe's battle-hymn of the Republic was performed with unequalled power & effect - one of our German friends - Lasar, having drilled the choir to the expression of every shade of idea..." The writer hears "an immense deal of the Adams-pass affair." Thinks the real difficulty is between England and Louis Napoleon. "He has got a handle against England by it..." The writer had a letter from R.D.W. (Richard D. Webb) who "speaks affectionately of Anne (Chapman) 'grown up & [redacted] at Court' - whom he remembers tending the little black & yellow kitten." New York. The writer tells about an invitation to Mrs. Jay's to meet (Robert?) Purvis, and names the guests there. George Ward had asked Maria (Weston Chapman) "about getting Wendell Phillips to go to England to convert the English... It seems that John Forbes has written to urge his coming." Henry G. Chapman, meeting the writer on the street, invited him to dine with relatives and other guests: "a two-hours dinner poor & tiresome." John Jay and the writer went to the club, but it was too late to hear Bancroft and Bellows speak. Maria (Weston Chapman) opposed the idea of Wendell Phillips's going to Europe.

New York. Complains of the heat endured on a trip to New York. There were very few Abolitionists or clergymen on the train. Tells about meetings at the Cooper Institute at which he, W. Phillips, H. Greeley, T. Tilton and H. B. Stanton spoke. F. Douglass was an unwelcome guest at a business meeting. Visited Mrs. Underhill, a medium. The weather has been rainy and warm, with thunder and lightning. Tells about John Hopper and his family; a meeting of the Convention of Loyal Women; an invitation of Mr. & Mrs. C. Bramhall; J. T. Sargent; H. C. Wright; and P. Pillsbury's health.

May	To "My dear Lizzy & Anne" - Mrs Elizabeth (Chapman) No.62 Laugel & Anne Greene Chapman.

New York: "The news of last week - that the Battle of Chancellorsville was the greatest disaster yet, is confirmed. But it makes no impression, as it causes no result. The story of the flight of the 11th army corps is frightful. Ingersoll Grafton was in their way as they came mad & frantic with terror, shrieking & praying to be allowed to run off in safety -"

The writer explains: "But they had been fighting 4 hours, we learn from other quarters, & when they found they were not to be supported, while the enemy was being reinforced opposite to them, they gave way & lost their heads. A whole German family - Colonel, two Lieutenants & two more subalterns were

The writer says of Wendell Phillips that "with all the good he might do," his judgment is weakened by emulation of Pillsbury and John Brown. William Jay is useful on Meade's staff; "he & his horse held out at the Battle of Chancellorsville till the very last."

Garrison experiences "some of the difficulty of disbanding an army." Garrison's, the writer's, and H.C. Wright's attitudes contrast with those of (Samuel) May, Pillsbury, and Wendell Phillips. The writer tells of the arrest of (Clement Laird) Vallandigham under martial law. Reports gossip about Sickles and Hooker and criticism of S. G. S.

Referring to the lecture missions to England: "Infra dig. is all this trotting to Engl. from Thurlow Weed at first to H.W. Beecher at last. These are times when the golden mouthed Chrysostom had better hold his tongue." Comments on John Arthur Roebuck as a "broken down man (paralysis) scoffed at by the people, despised by the liberals..." To the writer the addressee seems to have been "more grieved than needed about Hooker's defeat. - This is the way our victory is to be won. By constant disaster, like iron under the hammer are the U.S. made what they ought to be". Further: "Negroes as soldiers save our territory. They are

(Edward Lillie?) Pierce is commissioner of abandoned plantations. Dr. (Samuel Gridley) Howe is commissioner for the care of freedmen. The writer sent John Jay to tell them to be "sure to insist on punctual payment of the labourers & soldiers. There is where it sticks a little as yet." This commission will impress the friends in England. "I urged it on Sumner very strongly..." Comments on the compensation paid the commissioners. "I can only say, I could not take if I were these men. (Frederick Law?) Olmsted and (Edward Lillie?) Pierce are the proper men for it & there is where I guess it will end." Praises the foresight and vision of northern youth as "something sublime."

«(New York): Draft of a letter, with deletions and corrections. Refers to a leading article in the newspaper, headed Economy in Dress & Living. Points out certain irrelevances.

"Pray do not let us become so bewildered as to call either our virtues or good fortune a sin. It is because we are a republican people that every woman above the condition of abject poverty has a silk gown ..." The only issue is the saving of money. "The Ladies of Boston have through a Committee consulted their own Members of Congress who have advised a non-importation policy." Doubts the utility of discussing the use of wine and cigars and ladies will probably not give up tea and coffee. Objects to the doctrine of the "inordinate luxury" of the South. In spite of misplaced emphasis, the pledge (of the Economical League?) "seems most judiciously drawn up. If no

The writer has been miserable for three days with pain and various troubles. "I think one year more will bring me to the end of my string." The house seems deserted except for the immediate family. Comments on Seward's going to Fort Muproe to meet the Rebel Commanders. "I hope he won't commit any darned folly..." Remarks on the strangeness of Elisabeth (Bates) Vandeweyer's never having written a line to the writer.

New York. The writer praises the Report of the Annual Meeting. Thinks the Anti-Slavery Standard should be continued until the final ratification of the Thirteenth Amendment. Subscribers and friends should be consulted on the question of whether to continue the Standard to the end of the volume. Says the withdrawal of Phillips and his friends reduced the receipts of the Antislavery Festival by $1200.

New York. The writer thinks the Anti-Slavery Standard should be continued until the ratification of the Thirteenth Amendment if funds permit. Believes that the Annual Meeting of the American Anti-Slavery Society would be more harmonious if the issue of continuance of the Society were settled beforehand. Says he has talked the matter over with Aaron Macy Powell at some length.

New York: The writer encloses Henry Ward Beecher's sermon. "I think, if our friends manage wisely, that we shall get a vote to dissolve; but I may be mistaken. W. P. Wendell Phillips will no doubt exert himself to the utmost" (to continue the American Anti-Slavery Society.) The writer tells an anecdote, presenting an analogy to the folly of some Abolitionists. Concludes that if "Phillips, P. P. Pillsbury, and the Fosters choose to wear the 'old clothes' of the American Anti-Slavery Society, after they are thrown away, let them."

New York: Names those who went to the anniversary meeting of the American Anti-Slavery Society. "We had, yesterday, our invariable accompaniment to our anniversary, a dismal, pouring, north-easterly rain-storm ..." W. Phillips was the first speaker at Dr. G. B. Cheever's church. He stressed the importance of the negro's right to vote. W.L.G. and Phillips disagreed on the question of dissolving the Society. C. L. Remond "made, as usual, a querulous, fault-finding talk, going, of course, with Phillips", who favored continuing the Society. The National Freedmen's Association held a meeting at the Cooper Institute. Mentions the death of John Hopper. The mother of Mrs. W. L. Garrison Jr. is returning to Boston with W.L.G.

The tone of the meeting was painful from a "sort of under-current of dissatisfaction." The writer will "hail with delight the moment when they conclude to disband." To continue after the Amendment has been ratified "would be the madness of folly." The writer refers to "the cruel assassination of the good President," and praises Lincoln as "that pure and gentle heart, that loving soul." Remarks on the grief of the nation and the sympathy of England and France. Exclaims; "And-Jeff Davis' arrest in petticoats! and you ever hear of such a farce!"

New York. The writer explains that Mr. (Edwin Lawrence) Godkin's stay in Boston was too short to enable him to call on the addressee. "The Nation will start under the most favorable auspices. Now that its establishment is an accomplished fact my connection with it ceases." The writer is secretary of the American Freedmen's Aid Union. The function of the Freedmen's Aid movement is "the enlightenment of the newly liberated blacks (by schools & the like), & of the unliberated & half-liberated whites - north & south - as to their duties to the blacks." The writer wants the aid of the addressee, her sisters and daughters "in making this movement what it ought to be."

"The Nation, New York. Tells about preparing a lecture on the impeachment of Pres. Johnson on the way to New York. Was met by W. P. Garrison and went to his home, where he met Lucy (McKim) Garrison and Mr. & Mrs. J. M. McKim. Attended the funeral of Mrs. Oakford, Mrs. Anthony's daughter. Gave his lecture, which the New York Herald published. Was disappointed that the New York Tribune did not also do so. W. Phillips heard his lecture. Lists the places he visited and the neighbors who called on him at W. P. Garrison's house. "Tomorrow forenoon I am to be at Brady's for a photograph." A.L.s. 4 p. 8 x 5 in.

To Kate Field?

New York. The writer answers certain questions about his stage career. Says he has about eighty roles in his repertoire, has renounced the Theatre Francais and that he has never studied melodrama. Tells of his difficulties in making himself understood in English when he arrived in London. Says that after much study, he got a part in Ruy Blas in the Princess Theatre in London. Will give the outline of his life in his next interview with Miss Field.

New York. The writer does not intend to write a history of the abolition movement, but his own recollections of the first few years, "with a view to setting in a clear light the leadership of Garrison." Does not expect to cover more than the first ten or twelve years. Taking an apologetic attitude toward his own undertaking, the writer is disappointed that he could not persuade Garrison to write a series of autobiographical sketches. "(Edmund) Quincy ought to write the history. He is a writer of marvelous skill, and he understands both the facts and the philosophy of the movement."

To Kate Field

New York. The writer says that Kate Field is made unhappy by forced inaction. "...As for you (Kate Field), you do more than our best; & if, my brave girl, fighting as you do, you have to fall, recollect that there are applauding hands to bear you to a place of refuge,.... It really looks, though, as if you were at last winning your way..." Says her last letter to him was read by his wife and three of her friends. Mentions Mrs. Stone's inability to understand artists. Describes Mrs. Thompson. Discusses clippings, articles and contracts. Is trying to write poetry and is also attempting to make some money in Wall St. Discusses Lord Houghton and Joaquin Miller at length.
